

Something to which man has a natural inclination.

=

Something naturally apprehended by practical reason as being good.

III

Something that is a precept of natural law which ought to be pursued.

=

Something naturally apprehended by practical reason as being good.

Something to which man has a natural inclination.

=

Something that is a precept of natural law which ought to be pursued.